In this dynamic and interactive community project workshop students will create a miniature conceptual red dress collection to help promote awareness of women's cardiovascular disease. The finished collection will be included in the exhibition Matters of Dis-Ease at 108|Contemporary Gallery, August 6 – September 20, 2015. Working on provided garment templates, students will explore a variety of textile techniques for embellishment, fabric manipulation, and working with type as they learn how to infuse fashion with a message vital to public health.
